Foreword

The 1969 Hornet Staff elatedly presents the 1969 Hornet which is centered around the theme "pride and progress." The staff has endeavored intensively to produce this record of the class of '69's expreiences and impressions of their stay at Morris College, but we enjoyed every moment of the hard work that went into its making.

The annual consists of five major divisions: 1) the administrative staff, 2) faculty, 3) student body, 4) clubs and organizations, and 5) classified advertisement.

The staff proudly acknowledges, and appreciates the artistic contribution in the design of the college seal executed by Mr. Theolander M. Taylor, Head of the Art Department. We are deeply indebted to our advisor, Mrs. Pontheolla T. Williams, for her constant guidance and assistance in compiling and organizing the material, to our photographer, Mr. W.B. Bullock, for the fine quality pictures and for enabling us to meet our deadlines set by the publisher, and to Delmar Publishing Company for their efficient job as publisher.

Now it is time to flip through the pages and reminisce our most precious moments of 1968-69.

Dedication

By Faith and Faith alone
We are justified. But Faith must be "up and doing."

This famous biblical paraphase must have inspired The Woman's Baptist Educational and Missionary Convention of South Carolina to pray deeply, wish sincerely, and work untiringly to push the work of the organization forward. This is the organization that played a vital role in the growth and development of Morris College for sixty years.

Organized April 2, 1888 by eleven women in Zion Baptist Church, Columbia, South Carolina, the convention's purposes were to promote Christian education, and home and foreign mission.

Since organizing, the convention has been led by six strong and diligent leaders: 1) Mrs. Fannie E. Davis of Columbia, S.C. (1888-1897); 2) Mrs. M.J. Rayon of Charleston, S.C. (1897-1903); 3) Mrs. R.E. Robinson of Greevnille, S.C. (1903-1904); 4) Mrs. Cora S. Boyin of Camden, S.C. (1904-1922); 5) Mrs. Connie N. Jones of Charleston, S.C. and Dr. Mable Keith Howard of Darlington, S.C. The Convention is presently under the leadership of Dr. Mary C. Whitner of Laurens, S.C.

The convention takes on a special project for Morris College each year. Among precious gifts and major contributions from the convention to Morris College are Dobbin-Keith Hall (1913), the Dean's cottage (1934), Mable K. Howard Building (1954), the sponsoring of an annual summer camp at Morris College to give youth training during the summer in Christian education and recreational activities, and a donation of fifty-thousand dollars on the endowment of the college. The convention has also contributed a considerable amount of books to the library, including the first Negro collection, and is presently sponsoring a drive for twenty-five thousand dollars for books to the library.

These contributions were made under the leadership of various presidents, but these presidents had an able body of dedicated Christian women behind the scenes who worked diligently to make these contributions. It is impractical to mention the names of all these women, for they would occupy numerous pages.

We therefore feel keenly obliged to say, that for sharing in the total development and progress of Morris College for sixty years, and for the pride in being a part of the great cultural heritage which is ours, the student body of Morris College proudly salutes the entire Woman's Baptist Education and Missionary Convention of South Carolina in dedicating to you the 1969 Edition of the Morris College Hornet.

MORRIS COLLEGE
O. R. REUBEN. PRESIDENT
SUMTER. S. C.

Dear Students, Faculty and Friends:

This yearbook, for which we congratulate the staff and the senior class, is a symbol of the new vitality and life which now possess our College. Already we are celebrating our Sixtieth anniversary. These have been years of vision, dedication, sacrifice and achievement. Following our motto: "Enter to Learn and Depart to Serve," Morris College has sent out thousands of young men and women, as we proudly send out this graduating class, into the schools, pulpits, businesses and professions, and into various communities as servants and salt of the earth.

Today we stand at the threshold of new and bigger accomplishments as our New Development Program will double both the size and capacity of the student body. We are determined to meet the challenge of change and to make a contribution commensurately with the dreams of our founders, and needs of the time. To this end we solicit the goodwill and support of all friends of education.

Very truly,

O. R. Reuben

The Division of Natural Science

The Division of Natural Science embraces the areas of Biology, Chemistry, Physics and Mathematics. The chief objectives are: To present both the practical and theoretical sides of subjects offered, and to help the student apply the acquired knowledge to various situations that he may realize the importance of science and mathematics in life.

To train the student in the scientific methods of investigation;

To give the student a scientific training pertinent to his chosen field or vocation, and to prepare him to meet professional school entrance requirements.

The long-planned new science building has become a reality, and in it students have the proper equipment with which to work.

The Division of Social Sciences

The Division of Social Sciences offers courses in History, Geography, Sociology, Economics, and Government.

Students of this department are active in the political, social, and cultural life of the college and community.

This department aims to enable students to acquire functional information and basic understanding of cultural heritage, man's interaction with his physical and social environment, and existing political and economical institutions, with special emphasis upon the institution of democracy.

The students enrolled in this department are learning how to think critically and creatively, and to use problem solving skills in situations involving human relationships.

Division of Humanities

The Division of Humanities embraces the Areas of Art, English, Modern Foreign Languages, Music and Religion. The chief objectives of the Division are as follows:

1. To give the student an understanding of certain enduring and ultimate human needs which define the goal of all technological achievement and social organization: character, creative expression and appreciation, wisdom, and reverence.
2. To aid in the development of analytical and critical insight into the development of principles and techniques of language and art.
3. To stimulate the perennial enterprise of unifying beliefs into a workable philosophy of life.

Division of Education

The Division of Education at Morris College is designed to promote the development and growth of professional teachers by giving them a broad liberal arts education within the framework of the college, and a sound training in one or more specialized areas in which the student is to devote his energies as a teacher.

Students receive a program of general education designed to develop the knowledge, understanding, skill and abilities which are the common possessions of educated persons as individuals and as citizens in a free society.

Many courses offered by the department have been enlivened through the use of new teaching techniques, and audio-visual aids.

Betty Lee King (1948-1968)

In all wisdom God called his "special angel", Miss Betty Lee King, to join him in the beauties of the heavens. It is in knowing that God's works are always righteous that we rejoice in the parting of our loved one.

The Morris College Family finds solace in the remembrance of her beauty and the wonders of her ways. We marvel at the idea that God has added one more angel to his starry throne.

"The grace, divine, definitive,
Clings only as a faint forestalling;
The laugh that love could not forgive
Is hushed, and answers to no calling;
The forehead and the little ears
Have gone where Saturn keeps the years;
The breast where roses could not live
Has done with rising and with falling . . . "

President's Message

The student body at Morris College is confronted with the challenges of today's society just as other student bodies across the country are. We here at Morris, are concerned very much with our role as individuals striving to help this nation remain the number one nation on earth.

It is the Morris College objective to see that its educational system provides the type of education that will embrace every phase of American and world adult responsibility. The administration, faculty and student body have vowed to work hand in hand in promoting this objective.

As a black institution it has chosen to do more than its share in establishing meaning in the black man's life. Morris College has fostered in its curriculum those courses designed to make tomorrow a day which will be filled with black awareness and black achievement coming together to establish a black power: The full realization of economic, political and social strength presently enjoyed by the dominant majority.

It is the chosen ambition of Morris College to move forward, taking with her all of her students.

As a student leader, I am privileged to say that tomorrow's world will certainly benefit from Morris College's work today.

The Hornets finished the 1968-69 season with a respectable position in the SEAC Tournament and Conference's standing. Coach Harry Geter, a young and dynamic new member of the Morris College Family is expected to better his record in the year to come. The Hornets finished 6th in the conference's standing and 4th in tournament play.

The 1969 Hornet

Reno Russell Boyd
Editor, 1969 HORNET

It has been the goal of the 1969 HORNET to present a complete record of the events of the past year in as factual a manner as possible.

To achieve this purpose, an attempt was made to include all the features of the previous year. Expanded coverage of the Coronation of Miss Morris College, Homecoming Festivities and Athletics were included. Working against deadlines and compiling this yearbook was made possible by the effort of many people.

One of the many influential of these people is Mrs. P. T. Williams, advisor of the 1969 HORNET. Our staff was greatly influenced in their concepts of the yearbook by the knowledge and advice which Mrs. Williams imparted.

Equally important to the HORNET were its photographers. All pictures in this volume were photographed by photographers from Delmar Studio.

Finally, congratulations to all the staff members, who put countless hours and dedication into the production of this "1969 HORNET."
